

Rosso di Montalcino

Producer

Col di Lamo

Wine Region

Rosso di Montalcino, Tuscany, Italy

About the Winery

The Col di Lamo vineyards extend eighty hectares across Montalcino. The owner, Giovanna Neri, is a Law graduate who inherited from her father a great passion for wine. Today, she is an established and respected producer. She leads a tight team of 4: an agronomist, an estate worker and her daughter, Diletta, who recently joined the business to manage their marketing and communications.

Giovanna nurtures her business, the vineyard and team with a great Italian motherly love. Her wines have thus become part of her family. 6 hectares of the vineyard produce Brunello di Montalcino, 3 hectares produce Rosso di Montalcino and 2 hectares produce their “Super-Tuscan”, Lamo. All of the Col di Lamo wines are farmed organically and certified as such. The winery only uses natural yeasts and do not add any additional tannins. The best vintages for her Brunello were: 2004, 2010, 2015, 2016.

Grape Variety

Sangiovese

Style

Medium-bodied

Tasting Notes

Deep ruby red with violet nuances exuding a flavour that is fresh and harmonious with an excellent balance of tannins.

Food Pairings

Pasta with red sauce, risottos, light meat dishes.

Drinking Window

Drink now